FORT BENTON, Nov 17th 1865

On the 17th of October, 1855, a treaty was made with the Blackfoot Indian Nation, A Cumming and Isaac I. Stevens acting as Commissioners on the part of the United States by which nearly the whole of what is now Montana was given over to their exclusive use, the northern portion for a dwelling place, and the part south of the Missouri River for a hunting ground Gold had not been discovered here, and Government thought itself perpetrating a master stroke of policy when it appropriated to the Indians lands that it seemed would never be good for anything to the whites No one needs to be told that it has become desirable to extinguish the Indian title to these lands, since nearly fifteen thousand whites have settled upon them, attracted hither by the magnetic influence of the precious metals Realizing the necessity of this change, the General Government in March last assembly empowered and authorized Major Gad E. Upson, the Indian Agent at this point, to enter into a new treaty with the nation mentioned, and to obtain, if possible, a cession of lands now occupied and likely soon to be settled by the whites. This treaty, after the usual delays which are always necessary when dealings are had with the Indians, was finally concluded, yesterday, at this place. Arriving there the day before the ceremonies, I found the place all alive with preparation for the morrow, the whites getting in readiness to astonish the natives, and the Indians, back to their camps upon the Teton and Missouri, fully expecting to surprise the whites

The morrow came, and with it, a bright bracing day, and to the Council House, about noon, went forty-three chiefs and headmen, with their wild retinues, delegates being present from the Pigans, Gros Ventres, Bloods and Blackfeet, all embraced under the general name of the Blackfoot Nation. With regard to the Bloods, it must be noticed that the hostile band by whom the murder of the eleven whites was perpetrated last spring on the Marias river, was not represented, those savages, ever since the murder, having outlawed themselves beyond the British line. The Gros Ventres came into the place in fine style, the chiefs prancing along at the head of quite a troop of young warriors, drawn out in line, who chanted a song of peace as they advanced The room selected for the holding of the council had been finely decorated, the white interior being lined with cotton cloth, the white ground-work upon which were festooned the long stripe of red and blue flannel, producing, with fine effect, the national colors wherever the eye wandered. The four pillars in the center of the room served as emblematic columns upon which to arrange the insignia of both war and peace—the rifle, the bow, the tomahawk, and, as the opposite of all these, the only olive branch to be obtained in these regions, the evergreen bough.

Upon the blanket covered seats the red delegates seated themselves, and upon the platform at the head of the room, and in front of the beautiful national decorations, were seated the Commissioner, Major Upson, and by his side, General Thomas Francis Meagher, as Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the Territory; United States Judge L. E. Munson, as legal counsel for the Government. The interpreters and other whites having influence among the natives, also occupied seats on the platform.

As the artillery firing ceased outside, the parley commenced within. The pipe of peace was passed, and was received with thanks. Perfect harmony seemed to prevail, both the pipe bearer and pipe being stroked affectionately, some of the chiefs even going so far as to pat each other on the head in token of amity

The talk, which was carried on through the means of a French and Blackfoot interpreter, was necessarily somewhat tedious, and cannot be repeated at length. The Indians were assured that we desired a permanent peace, and that we wished peaceful relations to exist between the various tribes. The treaty was then read by Judge Munson, and interpreted. The principal provision, and the one which will most interest your readers, is contained in Article III, which provides for a cession of lands heretofore claimed by the Blackfeet, excepting those lying north of 48° north latitude—the Teton Marias and Missouri rivers, as far east as Milk river—the Indians agreeing that other tribes may be settled in this reservation. This article is somewhat modified by the next, which allows the Government to build roads and telegraphs, establish military posts, agencies, mission schools, etc., in the reserved territory, and permits the whites free privilege to travel across it, but whites are prohibited from making settlements or trading, (unless specially licensed) within the limits of the reservation, and intoxicating liquors, and all persons dealing in them, are to be strictly debarred entrance thereon. The Indians acknowledge their dependence on the United States and their obligations to obey the laws thereof, and they agree to exert themselves to the utmost of their ability for the purposes of enforcing them, promising to deliver all offenders to the proper authorities whenever called upon so to do. As a recompense for the lands ceded, the United States agree to expend for the Blackfoot Nation, in addition to the goods distributed at the time of signing the treaty, $50,000 annually, for twenty years, such portion of this money as may be deemed proper by the President, to be used in promoting civilization among the Blackfeet.

After the reading of the treaty, "Little Dog," head chief of the Pegans, arose, and spoke for his tribe as follows "We are pleased with what we have heard to day. One reason why I am glad to hear what you have and to say, is, because there are three nations here to listen With regard to the Indians, the words are strong that you have told us. The land here belongs to us, we were raised upon it, we are glad to give a portion to the United States, for weight something for it. We don't intend to put aside the whites who have married in the nation; we want to give the half-breeds a share in our annuities. They own the land as much as ourselves, and we want them to get their proportion of what we receive for it Am very glad that you have told us to-day that you are going to send mechanics, physicians and teachers among us. Everything told us to-day we are willing to agree to; we see nothing bad in the treaty. Whatever we Pegans have promised we shall try to perform; so that the Great Father below shall be pleased.

"Bull's Back Fat" spoke to the same effect on behalf of the Bloods.

"Fish Child," the sole representative of the Blackfeet tribe present, agreed in sentiment with "Little Dog" and the others.

Major Upson, the Commissioner, expressed to them the pleasure that their pledges of peace and amity had given him; and he should expect all agreements made to be fully performed by them, in the same good faith that the promises made by the Government would be kept He

Sensation Rumors About Mexico

A good many journals at the East, whose columns continually teem with laudations of that supposed something called the Monroe Doctrine have for many weeks been publishing wonderful stories to the effect that the French troops are immediately to be withdrawn from Mexico In the view of these journalists, the Monroe Doctrine is to gain a complete triumph through the voluntary relinquishment by the Imperial despot, of his hold on the Republic which he has taken violent possession of Their luminous speculations and oracular utterances on this point are telegraphed us here carrying with them, apparently, as much weight as if they had received the imprimatur of the nephew of his uncle The information that the French are to leave Mexico, is repeated with some little variation of statement, almost daily in the New York papers, and it would not be surprising to find that many persons had actually been persuaded to believe that the evacuation of that country by its invaders had already begun

The theory that Louis Napoleon is looking for a good chance to recall his troops from Mexico, is open, unfortunately, to one considerable objection It does not agree with any indications we see, and therefore is in danger of proving a prophetic failure. During the last three or four months French troops of the line have been sent to Mexico in large numbers. Can any one believe that Louis Napoleon, now that he has gained so strong a lodgment in Mexico, and that at great cost in money and at imminent risk of war with the United States, would permit the whole enterprise to fall through want of a few thousand troops to act as a guard for Maximilian? From the commencement he has had to count on the forbearance of the United States, and as there is an evident disposition at Washington not to disturb his plans, the fear of a rupture with this Government will not prevent him from embarking in the original undertaking He is taking the chances of a war with this country, and so long as they wear their best aspect, and so long as our Government continues its present policy of forbearance, his scheme of spoliation will progress quite as favorably as he could hope or wish. He has not adhered to his plan in defiance of the danger of war with us, only to give it up at a time when he may begin to gather reasonable assurances that his purposes will not be interfered with.

The great aim of the first Napoleon was to acquire colonial dependencies for France in different parts of the world. Had it not been that England constantly in arms against him on the continent of Europe, he would have turned his attention elsewhere for the sake of establishing colonies. He would never have parted with Louisiana had not England, all powerful on the sea, compelled him to sell that valuable territory or have it wrested from him. France had been shorn of her splendor by the hostility of her ancient rival, and it was Mexico which Napoleon wanted to retrieve, or for which he desired to obtain equivalents in other parts of the world. The present Emperor is therefore carrying out the Napoleonic idea of strengthening France by acquisition of colonial dependencies. Mexico is a prize greater, perhaps, than his fondest dreamed of obtaining. It is a dependency which, if finally confirmed to France, will be to that country what India has been to England. It will not be a mere province for whose government Louis Napoleon will have to grant subsidies; but it will be to France nothing less than a vast tributary empire

So great, then, is the prize, that it hardly seems likely that the Imperial ruler of France would imperil it by the withdrawal of his troops, thus leaving Maximilian to his fate.

A statement has lately been made to the effect that the Cabinet of Vienna has agreed to furnish for Mexico two thousand troops per annum for five years. This report has given currency to other rumors relative to the withdrawal of the French contingent. But Maximilian could not sustain himself for half a year with a force so small as this. Therefore if the French troops leave, the puppet Emperor will have to go too This would end the whole enterprise—an event which nothing in the conduct of Louis Napoleon indicates is had in contemplation by him.

CONGRESS.—The Review of Salem has passed into the hands of Nolmer Hicks and Bellinger have withdrawn from their connection with the paper. Hereafter, we presume the Review will be conducted on sound "Democratic" principles. Under the management of three editors it had almost forsaken the true faith, and O'Meara had much trouble in keeping anywhere near the "Democratic landmarks." We suppose Hicks and Bellinger had to go out to propitiate the irate leader of the Oregon "Democracy." It may be safely predicted that the Democrat and Review will hereafter work together more harmoniously than formerly. The latter will be entirely under direction of the former. There is not now a person who has the temerity to contest with O'Meara the palm for the leadership of his party His triumph is complete He is the Agamemnon, or better still, the Zeus, of the "Democracy" of Oregon.

LINCOLN ON LEE'S SURRENDER.—In the appendix to Raymond's Life of Lincoln we find the following incident recorded. It was originally related in one of the leading religious journals of the United States.

On the day of the receipt of the capitulation of Lee, as we learn from a friend intimate with the late President Lincoln, the Cabinet meeting was held an hour earlier than usual Neither the President nor any member was able, for a time, to give utterance to his feelings At the suggestion of Mr. Lincoln all dropped on their knees, and offered in silence and in tears their humble and heartfelt acknowledgments to the Almighty for the triumph he had granted to the national cause

DEATH OF E. G. COWNE.—We learn by the Weekly Mountaineer of Jan 19th which reached Portland yesterday, that Mr E G Cowne one of the proprietors of that journal, died of pneumonia at the Dalles on the 18th ultimo. He was born at Fredericksburg, Virginia, came to this State in 1852, was for some time foreman in the office of the Oregon Statesman, but had resided at the the Dalles since 1855. His age was about thirty six years.

MURDEROUS HUNS.—The Salt Lake Vedette of the 9th January says that the Montana vigilantes a few days before, captured and hanged five more of the Port Neuf stage robbers, including Buckner, one of the most notorious of all desperadoes The murderers were caught and executed near Denver City, Colorado

DOCUMENTS.—We are indebted to Senator Wilkinson for the "Report of the Committee on the Conduct of the War," for the year 1865

A writer in the Idaho World says he has heard of only three persons who are not going to Montana in the spring

The Oregon Sentinel has commenced its seventh volume.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER ON HEAVY TAXES

The Copperheads are complaining universally about heavy taxation They are the persons who should be the last to grumble at the taxes The war which produced our great debt was begun by them and their friends The rebellion was a "Democratic" rebellion It was begun during a "Democratic" Administration and in "Democratic States A Republican joined at Jeff Davis its civil leader was a Democrat Two its military leader was a Democrat All its supporters were Democrats Democrats in the North favored it Thus the Democracy who now complain of the taxes were the very class who are responsible for the creation of the debt which caused them Their taxes are a legacy which the "Democratic" party has left us A Western creditor thus sets forth these pregnant facts

Let Democratic journals and orators howl over the debt and taxes their war has brought They but magnify their own sins Every dollar of debt is a Democratic legacy Every tax is a Democratic gift Every Government stamp is a Democratic sticking plaster Every person in the United States drinks in Democracy in his coffee and his whisky and in the sugar wherewith he sweetens them Each ingredient pays its quota for the cost of Democracy to the country The smoker inhales Democracy The sick man is physicked with Democracy The laboring man gives about one hour's labor every day to pay for Democracy The capitalist pays one tenth of his income for the cost of the Democratic party Every transfer of property is saddled with Democratic burdens Before he is begotten the child is subject to the Democratic tax From the cradle to the grave he is never free from it The funeral mourning must first pay the penalty of Democratic rule and a portion of that which he leaves behind must go into the Democratic vortex Generation after generation will carry this Democratic burden from birth to death But for this Democratic party, our people would hardly have known the nature of taxation But for the Democratic party the hundreds of thousands of young men whose bones are strewn over the South would now be productive laborers and the support and comfort of families now desolate No one can attempt to deny the indictment No one can pretend that the Democratic party had any cause for rebellion Yet it has the effrontery to cry over the burden of taxation As the father of the Democratic party, when he stripped Job of family and possessions charged it to his own sins, and sought to draw him from his integrity, so his Democratic sons now come forward with equal effrontery and charge their doings upon the loyal people, and hypocritically howl over their afflictions, and seek to seduce them from their integrity to elect to power the party that has brought all these woes upon the land.

"A MIXED ARGUMENT.—We state the facts which the Secretary of the Treasury has published, and which no man can deny, not to prove the war a blessing by indirectly producing this unexampled prosperity, but to prove that 'greenbacks have been a blessing'"

"The opponents of the specific contract law have never advocated an irredeemable currency

"The same reasons exist for the repeal of the [specific contract] law that have ever existed"

"We are in favor of the 'gold bonds' In fact we are ready to compromise with the Specific Contract men. We say to the firm of Messrs Bonbers. Brokers, Importers, and Co, bring on the 'gold bonds' and you may keep your Specific Contract pet."

The above extracts are from the Statesman It was doubtless ignorant of the true policy, and thought the surest way to be right was to keep up a record on all sides of the question The first paragraph is from the issue of May 10th, 1865, the second and third, from Jan. 22d, and the fourth from Jan. 29th—last Monday It can now refer to its past numbers and prove that it advocated "an irredeemable currency," and that it never advocated it, that it is in favor of "greenbacks," or "gold-backs," or any of the variations between It ought to be getting very popular (?) for it gives every man's hobby a puff and a kick alternately In the last paragraph, according to its own language, it has "chosen to join hands with the copperhead press of the State" but that was last Monday, and will doubtless be far from its position next Monday —State Journal.

The Statesman publishes the following items

An employee of the Quartz Mill Company has just arrived from the Santiam mines He reports everything progressing finely. The mill had been in operation about seven days, and had crushed about ten tons per day; and although the poorest of the rock had been selected, in order to scour the new, rough machinery, Superintendent Siebert was of the opinion that it would pay handsomely Work is progressing in three tunnels, the incline railroad works well, as high as 2,500 pounds of rock being delivered to the mill in eight minutes An experiment, with mail, is expected in to day It was expected that a "clean up" would be made on last Saturday evening, which would settle the question The stock is advancing.

The Willamette Woolen Manufacturing Company has succeeded at last in purchasing the saw mill property of Messrs Nicklen & Co on the bank of the river. We believe this Company now owns every mill site and all the water power about Salem.

We learn that a protracted meeting lately closed at the Silver Creek Meeting house ("Christian,") near Silverton, with an addition of 27 members to the church.

Three singe horses were drowned in Canyon creek, the other side of Canyonville during the late storm, while one of the stages was attempting to cross that stream

A NATURAL CONSEQUENCE.—Kotzbum, of New York, the defaulter, or to speak more accurately the thief, concerning whom so much was lately said in the papers, and who is now residing at Sing Sing, was a member of the celebrated peace-secession Convention which nominated McClellan for the Presidency. Kotzbum made a speech in the Convention, from which we extract the following bit of "Democratic" doctrine

We must stop this foolish, wicked war We must elect a man who will say to the South, come back, we will restore to you every constitutional privilege, every guarantee you ever possessed, your rights shall no longer be invaded, we will wipe out the emancipation proclamation, we will sweep away this confiscation act, you shall have all you claim

What a figure that Convention now cuts in history! What wonder that the man who uttered the sentiments above quoted, was a person who could commit any villainy? From the Chicago Conspiracy to the State's prison was a very natural step

LOOKING FOR QUANTRELL.—The Washington correspondent of the Worcester Spy says

The other day it was reported on the street that the notorious and most infamous Quantrell had arrived here as a pardon seeker, and taken a room at one of the hotels There was immediately intense excitement among the Kansas men stopping in the city and some half dozen of them, armed with pistols hunted for him diligently I am convinced they would have shot him at sight if they could have found him But no Quantrell was found, the report was false Those best in formed in regard to the movements of the notorious rebel scoundrel and out throat are sure that he died at Louisville just before the close of the war His real name was Quantrell The name Charles Hart, by which he was known during the Border Ruffian war in Kansas, was assumed

SAMBO'S TROUBLES AS A SCHOOLMASTER.—The Lynchburg (Va.) Republican says

James Kelsoe a negro who undertook to induct young ebony into the mysterious 'rendin', ritin' and 'rithmatic complained to the Provost Marshal yesterday that John Richardson had sent three little darkies to his school, for two cents each, after paying a part of his bill, refused to pay the balance but wanted to fight Kelsoe for demanding him, 'which extreme action" said the plaintiff "I is oppositely opposed to 'em The bill as made out was a curiosity and led a by stander to enquire whether book keeping was among the branches taught at the embryo academy However, the Provost Marshal ordered the pugnacious Richardson to pay the balance due in greenbacks instead of blows

HIT AT MISS DICKINSON.—Miss Anna Dickinson, in her lectures, makes a good many hits at husbands We guess, says an eastern exchange she will never get a chance to make one at a husband of her own

The Legislature of Idaho has asked the Post Office Department to establish a mail route from Idaho City to Rocky Bar direct The distance is about forty five miles

TREASON OBDIET.—The New York Herald designates the military leader of the late rebel armies as "Mr Lee, now in charge of a little college in Virginia"

Letter from La Grande

LA GRANDE Jan 1 1866

EDITOR ORECONIAN

Notwithstanding the severity of the winter I find the inconveniences of transportation not insurmountable therefrom, we still live" During last fall the all knowing weather prophets predicted a cold winter and many were led by false reports to believe these predictions and were caught napping by the terrific storms that have characterized the past two months We have experienced some inconvenience from the irregular arrivals of the mail matter but the energy of our express and transportation companies have, in a measure remedied the deficiency, and we look forward to an early establishment of the regular order of things by the opening of the river Through the energy and untiring perseverance of the proprietors of the stage line Haley & Co and the recently established "East Freight Line Dalrell & Co, the road leading from The Landing over the Blue Mountains to this place has been kept open, and business and travel perpetuated in spite of the inclement weather experienced this winter The energy and perseverance of these who have established the transportation facilities of this county seems to be equal to every emergency and business calculation can be made now with more certainty

From your columns we learn the fact that the right to incorporate has been granted for this town, and you need not be surprised to hear of a change from a town to a city at no very distant period The portage between Umatilla and Olds Ferry on Snake river will be made through this valley and there is considerable interest being manifested in certain localities as to whether the transportation will pass on the East or West side

The transportation of freight between this point and Boise City, within the past few weeks, is considerable and consisting principally of flour manufactured from wheat raised here

Preparations for agricultural operations in this section for the coming season are vastly greater than any former year

The prospects for heavy and extensive mining operations at Eagle and adjacent points, has established a confidence heretofore unknown

The difficulty or misunderstanding, originating in the separation of this and Baker counties has been amicably adjusted, and the relation between the two sections is reduced to unconditions of harmony At the last meeting of the Commissioners of this county Mr Ed Bronson was appointed County Clerk the vacancy being made by the departure of J L Thomas for the States

From the general appearance of things, the coming season, for extent of operation, agricultural, commercial and mineral, will eclipse any preceding one Times are lively mechanics all busy, and matters and things generally bear a buoyant aspect that portends favorable times in the future

We have not been to Union lately but learn that for advancement and improvement it is not behind the times Summerville on the Walla Walla road, at the northern side of the valley, is laying claims to the recognition as a town and other localities have fame in view There seems to be a spirit of rivalry here that rapidly furthers advancement As an instance of manifestation of this spirit, we recently heard a resident of the valley remark, when conversing on the Pacific Railroad, that "if it did not make Grand Ronde a point, the people of the valley would not encourage the enterprise" and he seemed to think that if such encouragement was withheld, the undertaking would prove fruitless Others speak of their fabulous fortunes in feet at Eagle, and lay plans for the future investment, therefore, with all the assurance of one whose wealth was already in his coffers Millionaires (prospective) are as common here as on Wall Street, New York Some, in laying future plans, express a determination of taking up Uncle Sam's scrip, and bearing the same relation to the "old gent" that the Rothschilds do to "Johnny" across the waters. So you see the prospects are brilliant, even in embryo—what proportions they will assume when born and developed to maturity, time can alone determine.

That the gold and silver bearing lodes of this region are fabulously rich, we have no doubt, and when developed, may astonish the world with the vastness and richness of their yield, if not depreciate "hard currency" Greenbacks may yet live to command a premium over gold and silver, and may be redeemable in produce, merchandise or labor, instead of coin The "Stone," "Brazen" and "Iron" ages are past, and the gold and silver age dawns, but whether the adventurers seeking to cut a figure in the accumulation of wealth in the gold bearing regions of this coast will reap a higher order of happiness than the contented occupants of humble homes amidst the advantages of civilized life, is a question of extreme doubt, but the age of gold has dawned, and without the fee we are politically, religiously and socially damned, so there is no alternative left but to go after it W. S.

FREEDOM.—Who ever heard of any man reciting a poem to slavery? But if you want the noblest and most inspiring poems, save those from Heaven, read Milton, read Shelly, read Homer, read Halleck, above all—read Shakspeare. There are poets who sell themselves with venal spirit, to flutter in the atmosphere of Courts but even they, seduced by the pomp and brilliancy of fashion cannot break into praise of slavery They may praise the despot himself, but the iniquity of slavish servitude they dare not drown with song THE lieutenant of the poet will not allow it and his hand trembles, falters, and is palsied ere he attempts to sweep it in such praise across the lyre of song But when you talk to him of freedom, the lip of the poet quivers with inspiration, his heart glows, and the numbers break out as the stream dashes from the mountain top to seek the valley below—bright, clear, sparkling rare And are you ashamed to march in that procession? Shall reproach shall malignant slander, shall base misrepresentation make you hesitate? For me, at least, no, a thousand times, no! Where my youth has trod, my manhood and my age shall march I am not a hamed to wheel into the great procession I love freedom better than slavery I will speak her words I will listen to her music, I will acknowledge her impulses, I will stand beneath her flag, I will fight in her ranks and, when I do so, I shall find myself surrounded by the great, the wise, the good, the brave, the noble of every land If I could stand for a moment upon one of your high mountain tops far above all the kingdoms of the civilized world, and there might see coming up, one after another, the bravest and the wisest of the ancient warriors and statesmen, and kings, and monarchs, and priests and, if as they come up, I might be permitted to ask from them an expression of opinion upon such a case as this, with a common voice and in thunder tones, reverberating through a thousand valleys, and echoing down the ages they would cry "LIBERTY, FREEDOM, THE UNIVERSAL BROTHERHOOD OF MAN!" I join that shout I swell that anthem, I echo that praise forever, and forever more!—Edward D Baker

GOVERNMENT LOSS.—The Vedette gives the particulars of a heavy loss by fire at Camp Douglas of Government stores, on December 10th The Vedette says

The structure was an immense frame building, about forty by one hundred and fifty feet and was filled from cellar to dome with the large commissary supplies lately received for the troops of the District The camp was aroused and almost superhuman efforts exerted by Colonel Potter the officers and men to save the stores and adjoining building The Commissary building was almost instantly a seething mass of flame and comparatively few of the Subsistence stores were saved By dint of great exertions the Quartermaster's building adjoining was preserved but a shed containing grain was destroyed and part of the oats damaged The loss in a reverse one to the Government, and stores of immense value have been lost at a season when it will be difficult to replace them But those saintly individuals who yesterday so gluttonly and complacently rubbed their gilly hands over the catastrophe and the prospect of enormous profits to be extorted from Government by them and their sort, will be sadly disappointed A portion of the stores (upon brains & though damaged) have been saved and there is considerable of a surplus on hand at Bridger so that the Government is not wholly dependent on either producers or merchants

FROM BLACKFOOT.—Quite a number of persons have arrived at Walla Walla within the last week direct from Blackfoot As a general thing they came by way of the Pen d'Oreille They report having experienced but little difficulty in making the trip The weather was exceedingly cold but having made proper preparations they suffered but little from that cause All the streams on the way to were bridged with ice on which they crossed in safety there escaping the imposition of toll collectors The trains with the machinery for the Pend Oreille boat had succeeded in reaching the lake, and nothing is now in the way of completing the steamer Some of the teamsters who took out freight for the boat have returned to Walla Walla, bringing their animals After crossing the Spokane we understand that the teams went through without delay Walla Walla Statesman Jan 12th

HIGHEST OF THE HOLY.—The Democratic Review is receiving the contagion from the rebel organs at this place weaken and on the endorsement of the President's Message. This week it publishes documents of the rebel Jeff Davis type Ecce signum as the Message giving the lie to its own contents of last week Crack your whip again Democrats and make them crawl in the dirt — Albany Argus

TRIAL TRIP.—THE 49.—We continue the following account of the trial trip of the 49 to the Dalles Mountaineer.

The steamer started up the river from Celilo Landing at the Old Dalles Portage. The wind was so far adverse that it forced the boat to put to port, and she lay at anchor all night, with the intention of gathering his final along the banks of the river. The first day the boat run up 47 miles, eight miles. On the 10th the ascent of the 1000 Dalles was made. Had a very [illegible] the river was high, but the boat went up with all ease. But the boat went up with all difficulty. This night was spent a short distance below the 40th parallel. The next day the 11th the boat run up a few miles to the 40th parallel, which is a Hudson Bay Company's post. Twenty houses on the west bank of the Columbia about a mile above the International Meridian line. Here Capt White made the necessary arrangements with the Colonial Custom House officials and spent the day with the British who were delighted with the success of the enterprise. On the 12th the boat passed the rapids at Little Rock Island, seven miles above Fort Shepherd, but was forced to take out a tow line to help her over. Five miles above this point she was helped over another riffle, and run up to the mouth of the Kootenai. The first thing to be done in the morning of the 13th was to pull up another riffle which is the last until the head of Upper Arrow Lake is reached. The hills through out the entire distance rise almost from the margin of the river and the difficulties of navigation are very similar to those on Snake river above Palouse Rapids, except that the stream is not impeded with the big boulders and rocky masses which make Snake river so dangerous. At the mouth of the Kootenai river the Columbia gradually becomes less rapid, and for eight miles up Lower Arrow Lake the navigation is all that could be asked. The river gradually widens out to near two miles—the hills rising more gradually, the edges of the lake are filled with vast piles of dry drift wood, and the waters are protected from the action of the winds by the forest which everywhere comes down to its margin. It was near the head of this lake that the 49 met the fields of ice coming down. There were a number of Indians aboard with large supplies of provisions and these were put ashore, to spend the winter amid the moves and hyperborean frosts of 49° 30' north. From this point, the boat ran back to Fort Shepherd on the 16th and on the 16th returned to Colville Landing. From the head of Lower Arrow Lake it is fifteen miles to Upper Arrow Lake, and the arm of the river connecting the two lakes is known to have a sluggish current. Upper Arrow Lake has the same general peculiarities as the lower lake, and is sixty miles in length. The channel is forty miles to the Dalles de Mort, or Death Rapids, where even the climbing capacity of the '49 will prove insufficient to ascend further. The last forty miles is said to have a swift current, but there are no serious obstacles to navigation. The distances are as follows

	Miles.
From Colville Landing to the mouth of Kootenai	15
From thence to the head of Lower Arrow Lake	80
Through the arm between the two lakes	15
Through the Upper Arrow Lake	80
From thence to Dalles de Mort	40
Total	250

These distances are approximate, and are probably nearly correct.

SALE OF ENDURANT.—The celebrated trotting stallion Endurant, decidedly the prettiest and most gentlemanly animal of the horse species upon this coast, will be disposed of today at auction by Mr. A. B. Richardson, from in front of his Auction and Commission House, on the corner of Front and Oak streets. This horse is at present the property of Capt. J. O. VanDusen, who does not find able to keep him and has thus decided to offer him for sale. Endurant was brought into Baker county in the fall of 1864, by a party of young men from Wisconsin, and was sold by him to Capt. VanDusen. In bringing him to this city when he was [illegible] old. He is a [illegible], is of the best blood, and is [illegible] of the most beautiful. He is decidedly the best stock horse on the coast. He has added much to his very excellent reputation, gained in the States, by his performances here, and has many friends among the people of Contra Costa, especially the farmers. He is, in color a fine chestnut sorrel, perfectly sound, without fault and we hope to see him fall into good hands. The advertisement of Mr. Richardson refers to the pedigree of the horse.

LETTERS AT WELLS, FARGO & CO.'S OFFICE.—Some few days since we referred to the fact that a large number of letters were detained at the office of Wells, Fargo & Co in this city, in consequence of their being overweight, requiring [illegible] and unprepaid. The list published at that time was the cause of the personal calling for the letters mentioned, and properly forwarding them. Since that time other letters have been detained for like reasons. We give the list, and promise writers who are so careless about these things that we shall not continue to do so always. They must learn that to insure safety and dispatch their letters must conform to law. The following are awaiting the required envelopes: Williams Loughlin, Corvallis; Mrs. John Rith, (no other address). Oliver Eldridge, Mary Painter, Jas. C[illegible]ham, Maj. Gen. McK. Hudson, San Francisco.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT—HOFFMAN, J. February 6th, 1866.—The only case brought to the attention of the Court being that of Jack Golden, who had been led astray by that fickle dame Mis-fortune, and caught an account of flirtations with Miss [illegible], there was very little transpired to interest an attentive observer. Jack's case, however, was of that grade that it was referred to Miss-Giving, but as his Mis-Conduct settled him for five days the judgment was not Mistaken, and without Mis-[illegible] he was conducted to jail, "to be safe" [illegible] his grief, brought about by Mis-Behavior, and it is hoped receive a good [illegible] solving he longer to be a devotee of Mis-Hap, by [illegible] his self [illegible] a honest [illegible] when he shall be discharged from durance vile.

WHOLESALE & RETAIL.—This firm, [illegible] on H. O. Hudson & Co., manufacturers and jobbers of coffee, spices, pie fruits, pickles, etc., 46 Front street, are preparing for an [illegible] spring trade, and can offer to [illegible] never before offered in this market. Mr. Williams' experience in the business on this coast, some twelve years, during eight of which he was [illegible] in the employ of H. [illegible] & Co., gives him a chance to be [illegible] in making a good representation for the new firm, and with a [illegible] to see this region [illegible] upon San Francisco for supplies, we hope our [illegible] community will find it advantageous to patronize the home branch of industry as much as possible.

STREET GANG.—At the Dalles petty [illegible] and distribution of the passes are employed to work on the streets, [illegible] mounted with a bell and chain, and thus do the city some service by shoveling snow, repairing mud holes, etc., when under other circumstances they would go unshipped of justice, as the expense of a State prosecution to a conviction is so [illegible] that the law is practically inoperative [illegible] prisoners can be made to labor. The inauguration of a chain gang is a good system of punishment to be adopted in this city. The power is with the City Council to inaugurate such an institution, and we are at a [illegible] for politics in it can at once be [illegible].

A FAT HOG.—Yesterday a dressed hog, weighing three hundred and sixty-eight pounds, was delivered to Messrs Tidd & Wyman of the Front [illegible] in this city, from one of the Yamhill county ranches. It does not require much figuring to prove that a [illegible] of raising such pork as that [illegible] a good profit, and so does the butcher.

THE RIVER.—The Willamette river was rising yesterday at Oregon City, in consequence of a rise of the Clackamas, which checks the current below the falls. The railroad and the works of the People's Transportation Company are in full operation, and boats of both lines are running regularly as they are advertised in the OREGONIAN.

THE LECTURE.—The lecture last evening by Prof Stinson, on Evolution, was one of rare merit, and showed not only high attainments as a scholar, but also that he is a man of no ordinary ability. There was a good audience and the speaker did himself much credit, so much so that should he form lecturer he could not fail to have crowded houses.

DELEGATES MEETING.—The old board of delegates to the Portland Fire Department, met on Monday evening and finished up the [illegible] before them, incident to the organization of the board of newly appointed delegates to meet on Thursday evening of the [illegible] week.

THE UPPER COLUMBIA.—By private letter from the Dalles dated February 3d, we are informed that the Columbia river is closed for twenty miles from the mouth of John Day river up. It was clear of ice between the Dalles and Celilo that day.

TO BE MUSTERED OUT.—We are informed that Lieut Catley arrived at Vancouver on Monday last from the Dalles, to be mustered out of the service. The service will lose a very efficient man when Mr C retires to private life.

CITY CANVASS.—The school clerk, Mr I. M. Parrish, is now engaged in taking a census of the children of the city, and he also proposes to embrace within the report other statistics of the population, etc.

CORRECTION.—The directors of the Philharmonic Society yesterday elected Mr J. B. Wyatt musical conductor. The announcement of the election of Prof Birch, made yesterday morning was premature, and was based upon a misunderstanding.

MONTANA WITHOUT A LEGISLATURE.—The Territory of Montana presents the anomaly of a community without a legislature or the power to organize one. The legislature and the Executive failed last winter to continue the legislative functions, and the consequence is that no session can be held till again authorized by Congress. Acting Governor Meagher thus states the case:

The legislature, convened by Gov Edgerton in conformity with the provisions of the organic act, expired on the 24th of October.

The apportionment bill, providing for the new legislature, having been vetoed by Gov Edgerton and the legislature having failed to pass it over his veto by the necessary two-third vote it is clearly my conviction that the legislative functions of the Territory have temporarily lapsed.

To revive the functions, I am clearly of opinion that an enabling act of Congress empowering the Governor to re-district the Territory, apportion the representatives and convene them for business, is essentially required, and that no other proceeding can legitimately restore them, strange and embarrassing as the circumstances are in which their suspension places us.

When a witty English Government defaulter was asked after his recall, on his arrival home, if he left India on account of his health, he said "They say there is something wrong in the chest."

The Lack of Mail Facilities

The present arrangement of the United States mails in the interior and from the Lower Columbia to this point, certainly call for rectification with a view to conform them to the growing necessities of the country. It will be observed that whenever the river is closed there is a break in the communications between southern Idaho and the places below the Cascades of the Columbia. This break extends from Walla Walla to Lewiston and Portland a distance of two hundred and seventy five miles by land. Sometimes it is only for a few days, but generally for at least two months in the winter the communication with the interior is difficult and uncertain practically resulting in a total suspension of travel. Therefore, we do not be sure it is absolutely necessary it should be so, but because there is no provision for the transportation of mails and passengers by land during the suspension of navigation. To remedy this defect, it is necessary that arrangements to carry the United States mails from the Lower Columbia by land should be made. The section between the Dalles and Walla Walla is easily operated the average of winters nine days out of ten. Running through an open country, where the Chinook wind seldom allows the snow to lie three consecutive days, the daily passage of sleighs or coaches would keep the road open. But nothing less than continuous travel would do this. The crust on the snow is just as much a barrier to the passage of horses as if the earth were a molten mass of volcanic matter. Few horses can travel five miles in a hard crust with the snow eight inches deep. This necessitates the daily passage of sleighs and wagons to keep the crust broken up.

From the Dalles down the Columbia a road must be constructed, which will admit of the rapid movement of vehicles, and this is indeed an expensive undertaking. Considering the sparseness of the present interior population it does not promise very large dividends on its cost for some years to come, but with the vast prospective increase of inhabitants and resources the necessity for this road continues to obtrude itself on the popular mind, until at last it will be built. The day of the accomplishment of this enterprise is not remote. If, in six years, the interior has sprung from a population of five to forty thousand, it is reasonable to suppose that these figures will be doubled in a like period from the present time. As it is, half of the men who have visited the Columbia Basin are immigration agents, whose representations are doing as much or more, for the prosperity of the country than the combined exertions of the press.

If our means of interior communication could be improved, a great additional inducement would be offered for the permanent settlement of our interior. In fact if this is not done the mining settlements of Southern Idaho will look towards California for the means of winter transit which are denied them here. The routes by Star City and Ch[illegible] run through districts where the winter is less severe than those by Walla Walla and Umatilla. The hostility of the Indians through the section traversed by these routes, alone prevents them from being used to a greater extent than at present. If another year should pass without the means of economical and rapid winter travel being provided on the route from here to Boise and Owyhee, the probabilities are in favor of its taking the directions to which we have referred.

Unless the mails are carried continuously, in winter and summer, over the route we have marked out up the Columbia river, the project will be a failure. In order to justify the expense of the construction of the road from the Dalles to some point below the Cascades, it will require that it should be continually used—that the public mind should become accustomed to consider it as the principal connection with the outside world, and that by continual use, it should be kept constantly in repair. Experience demonstrates that a road which is kept only to be used three months in the year, is always out of order when it is most needed.

As to the relative speed of the transmission of mails by land and water, it is demonstrable that the land route has considerably the advantage, from the fact that the schedule can be so arranged as to admit of night travel over the greater part of any route to the interior, while the navigation of the Columbia is so difficult that it is safe to count only on daylight as the time to be used by steamboats.

We earnestly invite public attention to the ideas herein presented, with the full belief that upon the adoption of some such scheme of communication depends our future commercial connection with the richest portion of the mining interior.—Mountaineer.

PRODUCTS OF WALLA WALLA VALLEY.—A few weeks since we gave place to a statement showing that during the last year we exported seven thousand barrels of flour, the product of this valley. In continuation of this subject, and as showing the productiveness of our county, we compile the following statement of shipments to the lower country, principally by steamers:

Hay, 1,160,000 pounds, oats and barley, 459,247 pounds; onions, 88,265 pounds; potatoes, 42,462 pounds; cabbages, 1,400 pounds; wool, 15,600 pounds; bran, 14,360 pounds.

In addition to the foregoing, there were large shipments of hides and furs, the figures for which we have not at hand. Bearing in mind the fact that the development of our resources has but just commenced, and that previous to last year we scarcely produced sufficient to meet the home demand, and certainly this exhibit speaks well for the future of our country. With the year just commenced it is estimated that our surplus yield in the single article of flour will be equal to twenty-five thousand barrels. For every surplus pound of flour thus produced we will find a ready market in the Blackfoot, Columbia river and Boise mines—all of them to a great extent dependent upon us for their supplies of this important staple. In the line of early vegetables, we shall be fully able to supply the Portland market and thus stop shipments from California. Centrally situated, the coast markets, as well as those of the whole vast interior are open to us, and thus we have every inducement to stimulate to the very utmost our sources of production. We mention these facts for the encouragement of those of our readers who are engaged in agricultural pursuits. During the year just closed they have done well, but we expect them to do better in the future. With another year we shall have a large surplus of fruit, for which we will find a market in the mines.—Walla Walla Statesman.

PRACTICAL MISCEGENATION.—The Memphis Argus says:

Some very strange things have turned up since the close of the war, brought about by the abolition of slavery, and by the general result of that war. A curious affair is related, upon authority we deem perfectly reliable, as having occurred in [illegible] county, Mississippi. A bachelor planter of great wealth in that county had been for years keeping as his mistress a handsome mulatto girl, and by her had several children. The girl, not long after the war, took it into her head that she ought to be the lawful wife of her master. For this purpose she received the attentions of a handsome colored man, nearly white, and between them they pretended that they were going to make a match—that is, to get themselves regularly married. This excited the jealous alarm of her bachelor master, who, upon inquiring, was told by his mistress that she was certainly going to marry the colored man—that she was unwilling to live as a kept mistress any longer, and thus went on to intimate that her master might, if he choose, take the place of the freedman, and be "her true and lawful husband" for that a wife she was bound to become, she would be a concubine no longer. Strange to say, this wealthy white man, the iron old aristocrat old bachelor found that he was so much attached to his colored mistress he could not give her up, and forthwith agreed to pay the price she demanded, i. e., procured the services of an officer, and was regularly married to his former slave! The former quadroon concubine now deems herself a "lawful wedded wife."

THE ROAD ACROSS THE BITTER ROOT MOUNTAINS.—An act of Congress approved the 3d of March, 1865, appropriates $50,000 for "A road from Virginia City, in Montana, upon the most practicable route to Lewiston in Idaho." This money has never been expended, and is still in the United States Treasury at the disposition of the Secretary of the Interior. It was at one time thought that the money would be expended by Col Wm H Wallace as the manager in building the road, but he has as yet not even visited the country in which the enterprise is to be carried out. The Lewiston people were anxious that the road should be built over the Lo Lo Fork Trail, as by that means it would be exclusively for the benefit of that section of country. As there is no particular route specified, the money may be expended on re-opening the Middle Road, and this would doubtless serve the public interest better than the improvement on the Lo Lo Fork Trail if it were even practicable to make a wagon road on the latter route. If the people of the upper country who are specially interested in having the Mullan road again fitted for travel, would take the proper measures, it is probable that they could have the money expended for that purpose. It would be much the easiest way of solving the financial difficulty connected with the improvement of the route.

N. P. Britts had a fine looking specimen the other day from the Twilight ledge, in Flint district. It had been buried and was literally covered with little golden bulbs. He says that almost any of the rock from that ledge will show gold as plainly as the piece he had, when subjected to a red heat.—Ibid.

THE DEFAULTING TREASURER OF BOISE COUNTY.—The truth seems to have come out at last relative to the alleged defalcation of $[illegible] from the Treasurer of Boise county, Idaho. The Boise Statesman of January 18th, thus speaks of the matter:

The community was startled Tuesday evening on the arrival of the Idaho stage to learn that Alfred Sloman, Treasurer of Boise county, was found to be delinquent absolutely on the Territorial fund to the amount of nearly eight thousand dollars. The exact amount is said to be $7,810.17. Ben Anderson, Sergeant-at-Arms of the Council was sent by joint resolution of both houses just before the adjournment to bring Sloman and the funds down to the Capitol. An investigation into his affairs has revealed the fact that although two relief bills had been [illegible] in the aggregate to raise by twenty-one thousand dollars, he was still delinquent the paltry balance. The cause assigned is investment in mining stocks principally the lodge and mill known as the "Elkhorn," above Pioneer. What the return debt will prove to be is of course yet unknown. The above figures only show the amount due to the Territory after deducting $11,500 on the Crutcher robbery bill, and $8,000 on the Boise county relief bill neither of which are entirely settled. Sloman was arrested last Sunday by special officer Anderson to whom he discovered his defalcation. The Commissioners of Boise county hold a special session last Monday and declared the office of Treasurer vacant and called another meeting for the 15th of next month to fill the vacancy. Sloman has we understand made an assignment of his property to three of his most responsible sureties who will, in the course of a few days settle up his affairs. He was taken back to Idaho City yesterday morning in charge of Sheriff Crutcher.

SNOW SLIDE.—Last Saturday evening a snow slide occurred between this place and Silver coming from the east side of Florida mountain passing down by the Silver Bullion tunnel and checking up near the road. In passing over the flat it struck a shanty occupied by some three or four persons, completely crushing it, covering up the occupants but one, more fortunate than the others was enabled to dig his way out from under the snow, which was several feet deep, and made his way through the storm to the Lincoln mill, where he related the facts, and some parties, with shovels, went to the rescue of those still buried in the cabin. With the aid of a lantern, they succeeded in getting the location of the cabin and in digging out the parties covered up who were found to be not seriously injured, but in an uncomfortably situated and without much hope of escaping.—Owyhee Avalanche, 9th ult.

GENERALS.—At the General Grant reception in New York, the Post overheard a practical suggestion from a young lady: "What is the use of all these Major and Brigadier Generals walking about here? Nobody knows who they are," said she "why don't they have their names on their backs?"

BEEF DEAD.—It is reported that Mr Majors' whose train is located about twenty miles east from here, has lost nearly one hundred animals already, and is likely to lose the remainder if the present weather continues. It is also said that there are large droves of cattle on Catherine and Binker creeks, in Owyhee county. It seems impossible that they can live through the winter.—Boise Statesman.

Kentucky Knocked Over

[From the Louisville (Ky.) Journal, Dec 23.]

The adoption of the constitutional amendment lifts a great burden from the shoulders of the citizens of Kentucky. The period of uncertainty which has forever closed, weighed like a mountain upon them. The State laws protected the master and military authorities to a large extent, and the laws of Congress to some extent protected the slave. There were constant collisions theoretically and practically, and nobody knew what course to take, for every one seemed about equally blocked up. This was as bad for the blacks as whites. The latter were deterred from hiring the former through fear of the penalties impending over them for so doing, without the consent of masters, by virtue of the power of State laws. Slaves could not find employment consequently as free persons, and were not secure either as slaves or freed people. They were literally outcasts. They were deterred from hiring themselves out lest their masters should claim and get their wages and services, and others were afraid to employ them lest they should have to pay twice, to the master and to the slave superadded to which was the risk the employer ran of a prosecution in the State courts for a violation of the laws. Thus, between the dangerous Scylla on the one side and the fatal Charybdis on the other, master and slave, employer and employed, were in danger of being swamped and going to the bottom. All this is now at an end. The great load of oppression and doubt has been rolled away. The negroes are free, and white men are free too, and both may enter into contracts without the fear of pains and penalties. They may swap their fingers at the Sheriff or any other man"—provided they fulfill the engagements they may make with each other—and go on their way rejoicing. We repeat that the incubus that has paralyzed the energies of Kentucky for several years past has relaxed its grasp, and her noble and stalwart limbs at length are disenthralled. She is at last free from her torments and tormentors. The laws which in other times and under different circumstances were designed to be blessings became, through the moral earthquake that rocked her from centre to circumference once, so many fetters that bound her to a dead carcass. The whole slave code of Kentucky has ceased to exist. It falls at once and completely through the effect of the amended organic law of the republic, which is the supreme law of the land, "anything in the constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding."

We would not for an instant so insult the patriotism or common sense of the legislators of Kentucky as to so much as suggest the possibility of their attempting either to resist or evade any portion of the constitution of the United States. That would be mere madness. It would be simply an attempt at a revolt against the authority of the government, with the absolute certainty that such a revolt would be at once and thoroughly crushed. The Executive and every officer of the State, the Legislature, the courts and every citizen of the State are all bound to obey implicitly and without questioning the supreme law of the land. Whether the constitution suits them or not has nothing to do with the question of their obedience to it. That is not an open question. It admits of no discussion. It is not optional either with any magistrate or citizen whether he will obey it or not, nor is it optional with the Legislature. The slave code should at once be expunged from the statute book of Kentucky—every vestige of it; but whether expunged or not, it is absolutely and forever a dead letter, and any person, be he magistrate or citizen, attempting to enforce it or any part of it will incur instant and grave legal responsibility.

Kentucky is now placed on an equal footing with the other free Southern States. Her citizens can proceed without let or hindrance to make contracts for labor with the freedmen and women, and the latter, for the first time in their lives, will incur the civil responsibilities, and must perform the duties, of free agents. They have no longer any masters and mistresses to shield them from such responsibilities and duties, or to clothe and feed them or to take care of them, either in sickness or old age or misfortune. They must now take care of themselves. We doubt not that in many instances it will be the worst for them. They will learn that freedom from a master or mistress doesn't mean exemption from care or toil or suffering. On the contrary, these will all be increased, and fearfully increased. The colored people of Kentucky are free. Let them make of their liberty a boon, and not a curse. Whether it shall be a blessing or an infliction now depends mainly upon themselves. They can make it either. They can improve and elevate themselves, and secure the confidence, respect and cooperation of their late masters and mistresses, and of white people generally, by a proper course of conduct, or they can soon lower and degrade themselves, and sink rapidly into vagabondage, beggary, vice, misery and death. Whether the freed people can regulate or take care of themselves is not an unsolved problem, and all eyes both in Europe and America will be for years fixed intently and anxiously upon them.

We trust and believe that our own citizens will pursue toward them a generous, frank and sympathetic policy. We hope they will give them every possible chance to maintain themselves comfortably and to make progress in the scale of civilization. This will be right in itself, and it will be the best course for them as the dominant and ruling class. They will thereby promote their own interests and peace, while they benefit and elevate the colored race. The extreme persons in the North who have been making such an ado about the colored people of the Southern States have charged the whites in them with being the darkest decades of the blacks, but this has ever been and is now a gross slander. It never was true, and is not now. Of course, there have been exceptional cases, but as a general rule the Southern people have had no other feelings toward their servants than those of kindness. In numberless instances, indeed, strong affection has existed between the master, mistress and children of a family and the servants. We have ourselves witnessed many a touching illustration of the fact, and the scoundrels who prate at this idea only betray how little they know of that which they rant themselves hoarse about.

The Legislature will, of course, have to pass laws in reference to vagrancy and kindred subjects, but we hope that body will not legislate too much. Any attempt to regulate the price of labor is absurd. The laborer must and should be left to regulate that, like every other article. Too much of it we have seen suggested as a great deal of it, from the Hills: "Let the laws be few and short, and above all—[illegible]

IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENT IN BRICK MAKING.—Mr. John McCarthy, of this city, has recently finished and received a patent for an improved brick making machine, and several prominent citizens of this city have formed a joint stock company for the purpose of operating it. The machine has been put up a short distance beyond the Round House of the Kentucky Central Railroad, back of Covington, and is now in full operation. Although at first sight it appears very complicated, a closer examination proves that it is exceedingly simple in all its movements, of which there are eleven. The clay is taken from the ground by means of elevating cups attached to India rubber belts, and is emptied into two large wooden tanks at the top of the machine, where it is ground and tempered by means of steam, which is let through small apertures in the cylinder. It there passes into the moulds on the large cylinder, where, after receiving a pressure estimated at eight tons, the bricks drop out into an India rubber belting, and are carried away to dry and be burnt. The large cylinder does twenty-five revolutions a minute, and at each one discharges eight bricks, or twenty per minute. The capacity of the machine, it will be seen, is 12,000 per hour, or one hundred and twenty thousand per day of ten hours' work. The bricks, on leaving the mould, require very little drying, from the fact that the immense pressure put upon them drives almost the entire moisture out. The company owning the machine contemplate commencing work in earnest immediately and invite all those interested to visit the yard and examine the press for themselves.—Louisville Journal.

NEGRO SUFFRAGE.—Governor Boutwell of Massachusetts, and Mr. Farnsworth of Illinois, addressed a very large number of persons who favor negro suffrage, in the City of Washington on the night of Dec. 21st. A dispatch to the Tribune says:

Governor Boutwell's discourse went over the whole question of suffrage. By a course of the clearest reasoning he reached the conclusion that it is the family which is entitled to the vote. He exposed the fallacy of the proposition that the colored races, which embrace so large a proportion of the human family, are to be presumed less capable than any other of exercising this right of suffrage, and argued that whatever policy might prevail for the moment, the logic of events, in the near feature would inevitably lead to the adoption of manhood suffrage as a measure of safety since it will be impossible to keep four millions of people among us, doubling in numbers every twenty-three years, already instructed in the power of organization, and loyal to the Government, without granting them all the rights of manhood. How much wiser to do this now, freely and voluntarily, than to wait for the punishment of injustice?

A minor lately from Virginia, Nevada, says that owing to the scarcity of vegetation in that region "two mullan stalks and a bunch of thistles are called a grove!"

A VALUABLE WATER POWER For Sale.

THE SUBSCRIBER OFFERS FOR SALE A VALUABLE WATER POWER that can be worked on the Willamette Slough, three quarters of a mile south of St. Helens, at the town of Milton, generally known as the Water Power originally worked by T. H. Smith, a short distance back from the river. This Valuable Water Power can be conveyed to the bank of the river, with some 23 or 30 feet fall. The river bank is rock. The above site is at the head of the natural harbor of St. Helens, which has water sufficient for the largest class vessel in the trade to discharge or receive her cargo, and is entirely free of ice, drift or flood. The ground over which the trunk would have to be built is well adapted to the same, with inexhaustible stone quarries on the ground. As to the amount of water, the above Smith has run two sawmills abreast with less than half the head that can be had at the river. The snscriber is living on the premises, and will take pleasure in giving any gentleman all the information that may be desired, and can give a good title to the above premises. Address

THAT OLD GREENBACK CASE!

I am still obliged to accept of Legal Tender Notes as Payment have been Dec 17, 1865 for the rent of my Handsome Brick Store corner of Morrison and Front streets. I feel compelled to announce to the benefit of the public, that leased the building of me Feb 17, 1862, for a term of years, at which time there was no such currency in vogue, and it was understood the terms were Gold. Since the date above stated, I have received the depreciated currency regularly for the rent of the making less than two fifths of the real amount said Mayer was to pay. He had secured the building at very advantageous rates and even were he now to comply with his contract, and pay in Gold, would be getting the best bargain in the city. I make this statement to show the public what kind of a man he is, and to take such undue advantages of the times to cheat a few dollars in himself by LEGAL SWINDLING. The public can readily see how much it costs to have such transactions in a city building as the one referred to above.

THE STANDARD

AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLES!

AND COMBINATION CUSHIONS.

MESSRS. PHELAN & COLLENDER

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENTION of parties wanting Billiard Tables to the great superiority of their Slate tables, manufactured exclusively at their establishment.

At the Billiard Congress of 1863, composed of all the first-class players of America, it was unanimously resolved that tables of our manufacture should be used at all matches for the Championship, as the best and only reliable tables.

These Billiard Tables have received the unqualified approval of the best players and most competent judges who have universally pronounced them unequaled for general excellence and durability.

Seven distinct patents for improvements in Billiard Tables have been granted to us by the United States Patent Office and we have lately obtained a Patent from the French Government, for our improvement in Billiard Cushions.

We employ, in the construction of our tables, a variety of machines specially made for the purpose, by means of which is now rendered to insure a scientific and mechanical accuracy hitherto unknown in Billiard manufacture.

Having a long experience and thorough knowledge of all the appliances of Billiards and constantly on hand a large stock of the best and most thoroughly seasoned materials we are prepared to furnish everything required in the Billiard Room in unprecedented dispatch.

The eminent French Billiard Player, M. Perger, has published the following opinion:

"NEW YORK, 2d August, 1865

"On the eve of leaving the United States, I am happy to declare to all amateurs of Billiards that after a tour of eleven months through the principal cities, I have been enabled to judge to a certainty of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender. The system of manufacturing is superior that I am happy to introduce their style of cushion into France. They have united to their manufacture of American Billiard Tables that of the French Tables, of remarkable excellence and beauty. For these reasons I am happy to make this declaration.

"PERGER, CLAUDIUS

Prof. of Billiards, Paris."

Parties ordering from us will find our prices as low as good work can possibly be made for. We sell first-class articles at a fair price, and will not make an inferior article at any price.

Orders by mail carefully and promptly executed. Illustrated Catalogues and Price Lists sent by mail. The "BILLIARD GUE," a Journal published in the interest of Billiards, and containing details of all novelties, a complete record of Billiard news, and everything of interest to amateurs of Billiards, sent free on application.
